STUDENTS' CODE OF CONDUCT

1. INTRODUCTION

'Code of conduct' is a collection of rules, regulations, policies, acts, norms, terms or conditions that include, what conduct of action is acceptable and what is not acceptable.

Excel Engineering College (EEC) is very keen in upholding an ethical code of conduct, morale and values of all its students. The EEC, in its pursuit of achieving academic excellence has crafted this handbook of 'Code of Conduct' for its students which are expected to contribute for the all-round development of its students individually and collectively. The conduct of each and every student in the premises is very important.

Every student must know that it is his/ her responsibility to know, read, understand and abide by the 'Code of Conduct' elucidated in this handbook, or that may be included in this handbook from time to time as required for the development agenda of the EEC. The EEC will not tolerate breach of conduct of any student under any circumstance.

2. JURISDICTION

'Jurisdiction' refers to the area (place) included for the administration, monitoring, enforcement, hearing or penalizing with respect to instances of 'Breach of Conduct'/'misconduct' of student(s). Thus, the entire campus of the EEC is the 'Jurisdiction' for the applicability of the 'Code of Conduct' communicated in this handbook.

'Jurisdiction' also refers to the students who are required to abide by the rules, regulations, policies, terms and conditions set in this handbook of 'Code of Conduct'. Thus, all the students admitted for pursuing their education in various programmes offered by the school, colleges, research centres, and centres of excellence of the EEC are governed by the set 'Code of Conduct'.

Additionally, the EEC may also exercise jurisdiction over off-campus locations where a student of the EEC is found to have violated the set 'Code of Conduct' laid down in this handbook.

3. CODE OF CONDUCT

The various clauses included in this handbook of 'Code of Conduct' is applicable to conduct or behavior of students that occurs within the entire campus of the EEC and in any off-campus location where the conduct or behavior of a student has serious consequences or create an adverse impact on the name and fame of the EEC.

At the time of admission, every student must sign a statement accepting the elucidated 'Code of Conduct' published in this handbook as follows –
