SUMMARY REPORT

In any business, a customer is the pillar of strength. Be it a small organization or a big conglomerate everywhere customers are given the first priority in terms of growth and popularity. In general, customers are the end user of every type of product or services provided by an organization. One fundamental unit which every company tries to build a customer is trust. Nothing can elevate this particular factor when it comes to dealing with the market. Every company has a target group for its products or services.

There is no such end to learning. Every businessman should be in the process of learning. One may be highly experienced in the process of running a business yet discovering new things is always a good exercise. In the case of young entrepreneurs, learning is an essential factor as because only this can help them to polish their business skills. Studying the market is a part of the learning process. Every person who is about to start a business should be involved in the process of studying and analysing the market in the best way for the proper establishment of the business. Every day I learn something new from my colleagues and some senior experts. Though I am the boss yet there are certain things which I should learn over time and I do that every steps.
